Aubeterre-sur-Dronne is a small village steeped in history, an ancient stronghold built in an amphitheater on the banks of the Dronne. "Alba Terra" unfolds its white houses with honey-colored tile roofs in a green setting. You will discover and be able to contemplate all along your walk historical and remarkable sites, religious buildings and panoramic points of view on the valley of the Dronne.

You will be able to admire its castle, the chapel of the Minimes as well as the court of the cloister, the church Saint-Jacques with its splendid Romanesque frontage, the tower of the apostles, the old hospice Saint-François, the wash-house on the place Merkes-Merval and finally the underground church Saint-Jean, the highest of Europe, known as "monolith", of 20 meters height, dug in the rock with its reliquary inspired by the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem Before returning to your starting point, take a break on the main square of the village, the Ludovic Trarieux square, born in 1840 in Aubeterre-sur-Dronne, founder of the French League for the Defense of Human and Citizen Rights.
